I loved a girl named Emmaline,
My love for her was great,
An Em among a thousand Emms,
None could her M U late.

And when she said she did return
My love, with blushing grace,
I printed on her lip a kiss
And did my Em M—

German papers charge that France only awaits a favorable opportunity to attack the Empire. There is much excitement in Paris over the accusation.

The existence of cholera in Mar-seilles, France, is now officially admitted. Great fear is felt that there will be a renewal of last year's frightful experience.

The condemnation of Riel is bitterly denounced by French-Canadians generally, and the government and the Judge who tried the case are severely criticised.

The fire losses in the United States and Canada during the month of July are estimated at $9,000,000. For the seven months of the present year the value of the property destroyed is placed at $60,000,000.

The fiesta de San Agustin begins in Tucson on the 27th inst. Five of the most famous bull fighters in Mexico have been engaged for the occasion. Tom Wade is the principal promoter of the affair, and to him all applicants for space on the grounds should be made.

We need a temperance revival. The number of young men, middle aged, and old men with whisky flushes on their faces to be seen daily, is becoming alarming. Some may think the flush is caused by the hot weather; but when we see men wear out their pants trying to light a six penny nail we don't think old Sol has anything to do with the red eyes and feverish cheeks.—Nebraska Nugget.

The minister was making an evening call, and the oppressive heat was being discussed. "By the way," he said to the head of the family, "did you notice just how hot it was this afternoon, Mr. Hendricks?" "No, I did not," replied Mr. Hendricks. "Yes, you did, pa," interposed Bobby. "You are mistaken, my boy." "No, I am not," insisted Bobby; "I heard you say it was damned hot."—New York Mercury.

A colored man was hunting a house to move into. He was talking to some parties, when one of them spoke up and asked him if he had paid his rent to his former landlord. "Yes, sah," he said rather hesitatingly. "Can you get a recommendation?" "Oh, yes, sah, I can get Mr. Smith, my landlord, to give me a recommendation." "How do you know you can?" "O, I know I can, 'cause he wants me to get out."—Evansville Argus.

Las Cruces criminal item: Max Goldenberg is out in Arizona on the track of a trusted employee who recently absconded with about $2,500 of Max's money. The man, whose name is George W. Gladden, was sent to Texas to buy cattle for Goldenberg's ranch in San Andres. The next thing that was heard from him was that he was moving west with a bunch of horses. It is to be hoped that his capture will be effected and the stolen money recovered.

The ex-Empress Eugenie has retired to Farnborough, where she is erecting on the grounds of her residence a superb mausoleum for Napoleon III., the Prince Imperial, and herself. She lives in the same gloomy state which was kept up at Chiselhurst. She occupies her days in reading, writing her memories, receiving such accredited visitors as may present themselves, and paying occasional visits to the tomb. She prefers walking to driving, and is always followed by a dog. She carries a cane, and one observer thinks that she uses it with as much legal grace as though it were a sceptre. She bears the weight of years and sorrow with dignity, save for one personal detail—the employment of cosmetics. With the native coquetry of a Spaniard who became a Parisienne, Eugenie cannot submit to the ravages of time on a complexion once wholly admirable, and her countenance is a mask, exquisitely done, but little adapted to the garish light of day, and incongruous with her gray hair.

A Tenderfoot Cowboy's Experience.

True it is said that the cowboy was not always thus, but the day of the "crop-eared cayote from Poison Creek" is over in this latitude; his glory has departed forever. The real article of cowboy knows this, and doesn't attempt any of the old time picaresqueries; but occasionally one of the tender-foot variety, whose massive brain is stored with tales of border life as found in nickel novels, attempts to revive the custom of the good old days—but he never repeats the experiment. Only the other day we had a case of this kind. A young Philadelphian, belonging to a good family, and a gentleman when sober, probably, who was undergoing his first experience as a cowboy, came into town to show off his leather "scapps" and white hat. He held a glass under his nose a few times, and then started out to pave the street with human skulls. He soon found the contract was a big one. He made a "gun play" at a drummer for a St. Louis cigar house, who knocked him down and took the weapon away from him and spanked the bosom of his pantaloons with it. Then he braced up and tried to kill the traveling man with his bare knuckles, but was knocked out and hung over the piazza banister like a wet towel inside of thirteen seconds. He revived after a while and started after more sculls. He struck at a railroad man who laughed at him, and the twister of brake wheels uncorked his clarinet-jug and laid him senseless upon mother earth. Friends carried him off the bloody field, and the express train took him east that night.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Confessions of a Smoker.

Yes, it is a terrible bondage. It is a slavery. Yes, I inhale the smoke, and then blow it out again. It is very silly, is it not? I do the same thing with my breath. Away with this useless breath. Some breaths are much pleasanter far, far away. Why do I smoke cigars? Because I am the biggest, and therefore the cigar cannot help itself. It is an economical habit; the smoke of the cigar keeps the moths out of my hair. Then I use tobacco to preserve human life. Science tells me that three drops of the oil of tobacco placed upon the tongue of a rattlesnake or a dog will kill either or both of them in a minute. I tremble to think how many times I have walked in the very shadow of death before I began to carry a plug of tobacco around with me. Now when I meet a mad dog, I am secure. He may bite me, but I will kill him. The cannibal who eats me will dream that night that he got hold of the wrong prescription.—Bob Burdette.

Fight With Smugglers.

From the Nogales Frontier.
On Wednesday last a band of smugglers crossed the line into Sonora, just outside the village limits. The Mexican custom officials were apprised of the matter and at once started a company of mounted guards after them. They overtook them about three miles south of here, and a running fight ensued. The contrabandists, seeing they were about to be captured, cut their sacks from their animals and made good their escape into the mountains. The goods were scattered over the valley, but the guards gathered them up and returned with the spoils to the custom house. It is thought that one or two of the smugglers were wounded.

Cure for Biliousness.

From the Medical News.
The way to get the better of the bilious system without blue pills or quinine is to take the juice of one, two or three lemons, as appetite craves, in as much water as make it pleasant to drink without sugar, before going to bed. In the morning, on rising, at least half an hour before breakfast, take the juice of one lemon in a goblet of water. This will clear the system of humor and bile with efficiency, without any of the weakening effects of calomel. People should not irritate the stomach by eating lemons clear; the powerful acid of the juice, which is always most corrosive, invariably produces inflammation after a while, but properly diluted, so that it does not burn or draw the throat, it does its medical work without harm, and, when the stomach is clear of food, has abundant opportunity to work over the system thoroughly.

Peace means prosperity. It is only through the rigid observance and maintenance of the forms of law that peace can be sustained, and permanent development and progress assured.

Second Lieutenant C. P. Elliot, 4th cavalry, has been relieved as inspector of Indian supplies (flour, beef and beans,) at the San Carlos Indian Agency, and Second Lieut. J. B. McDonald, 10th cavalry, has been detailed in his stead.

We hear it stated that Hon. C. C. Benn is about to make a sale of a part interest in his Copper Basin property. We hope the report is true and that the lucky purchasers may become wealthy from the purchase.

July has been a fatal month for Presidents and ex-Presidents. John Adams and Thomas Jefferson died July 4, 1826; Monroe, July 4, 1831; Taylor July 9, 1850, while in office; and Grant July 23, 1885, while Garfield received his death wound upon the 2d of the same month, 1881.

A Brooklyn mechanic has invented a wonderful sewing machine, which, it is claimed, will do 80 per cent more work than any machine now in the market. An experiment with steam power moved it with a speed of 2,200 stitches a minute, and it was started and stopped instantly. It is simple in construction, is easily operated, and sews all kinds of fabrics, from leather to fine linen.—Mining and Scientific Press.

At a regular meeting of Tombstone Typographical Union No. 197, the following officers were elected for the ensuing term:

President—H. J. Brawley.

Vice President—W. A. Nash.

Secretary and Treasurer—W. Tomlinson.

Board of Directors—H. J. Brawley, W. Tomlinson, J. W. Canady and J. Madero.

Sergeant-at-Arms—G. Menden.

A good many Indians from San Carlos were in town the first of the week and sold considerable barley and hay to merchants and others. E. F. Kellner & Co. purchased most of the barley which was very good quality. These Indians are desirable visitors as they spend the money they receive for grain in buying dry goods and provisions from our merchants.—Globe Silver Belt.

George Frisk has been over to El Paso this week to inspect a herd of cattle seeking entrance to Arizona. He found something over 800 head of cattle, belonging to Ben Duncan, of Texas, the owner of the OT cattle range just west of Wilcox. They were from Frio county, one of the most southern counties in Texas and within the region where Texas fever is supposed to have its origin, so Mr. Frisk refused to admit them, and they have gone into twelve months' quarantine near El Paso.—Stockman.

Sensible Words.

We clip the following expressions from an interview between Senator Beck, of Kentucky, and a Lexington press reporter:
